

Chicago Style Overview

A short guide to citing sources using Chicago style (16th edition)

Commonly used in literature, history and the arts, Chicago style includes notes (footnotes or endnotes or both) and usually, a bibliography. Notes are referenced in-text, while the bibliography is included at the end of the document.

Formatting Checklist (Notes & Bibliographies)

- ✓ Indent the first line of each note and the second line of each bibliography entry (hanging indent)
- ✓ Notes are numbered and correspond to superscripted note reference numbers in-text
- ✓ In notes, authors' names appear in normal order and the elements are separated by commas or parentheses. In bibliographies, entries are listed alphabetically by author last name, the name of the first author is inverted, and the main elements are separated by periods.

Secondary Sources

One author quotes another

e.g. In a 2006 book by M. DeLanda, you find a quote taken from Ian Hacking's The Social Construction of What? (1999).

- “Quoted in” is generally discouraged, but if the original source is not available, both the original and the secondary source must be listed.
- In your footnote and bibliography, cite both authors, indicating the author of the original quote (Hacking), and the author in whose work you found the quote (DeLanda).

Hacking, Ian. The Social Construction of What? Cambridge, MA: Harvard Univ. Press, 1999. Quoted in Delanda, Manuel. A New Philosophy of Society. New York: Continuum, 2006.

Notes

18. Ian Hacking, The Social Construction of What? (Cambridge, MA: Harvard University Press, 1999), 103, quoted in Manuel DeLanda, A New Philosophy of Society (New York: Continuum, 2006), 2.
